Subject

- How do I add Credentials to My Application or EDJOIN Profile?

- How can I tell which type of Single Subject or Multiple Subject Teaching Credential I hold?

Single Subject: The TC1 is the Single Subject credential issued in years prior to 2000 under the Ryan Act. The TCSS is the SB 2042 Single Subject credential issued since the year 2000, which includes the English Learner (CLAD). Multiple Subject: The TC2 is the Multiple Subject credential issued in years prior to 2000 under the Ryan Act. The PTC2 is a Preliminary TC2 Credential. The TCMS is the SB 2042 Multiple Subject credential issued since the year 2000, which includes the English Learner (CLAD). EDJOIN is not a credentialing department so there is limited information we can provide in regards to what exact credential you hold. For further information regarding credentials, please visit the California Commission on Teacher Credentialing web site, www.ctc.ca.gov.

- My credential is not listed on your website. What should I do?

- How can I obtain a printer friendly version of my California Teaching Credential?

Please Note: These instructions may change without notice as they are for the CTC website, not the EDJOIN website. 1) Visit www.ctc.ca.gov and click the "Search For An Educator" button. 2) Click the "Public Search" link if you would just like to search by your first and last name. 3) Click the "Secured Search" link to enter your SSN and DOB to access more detailed credentialed information.

- Can I attach my CCTC record without displaying my social security number to anyone in the district?

- Some of the job postings ask for a Certificate of Competence. What is it, and how do I get it?

- I am an out of state educator with a credential obtained outside the state of California. Can I still teach in California and how do I go about applying for or renewing my credential?

NCLB "No Child Left Behind"

Subject

• What is NCLB "No Child Left Behind" ?

• What are the guidelines for meeting NCLB compliance?

To align with NCLB, California's State Board of Education established that teachers of NCLB core academic subjects must have: 1) a bachelor's degree 2) a state credential or an intern credential for no more than three years 3) demonstrate core academic subject matter competence. Competence can be shown by completing a CTC approved subject matter program, by meeting the High Objective Uniform State Standard of Evaluation (HOUSSE), passing an examination (CSET), or having a major in the subject or the equivalent. The state considers 32 semester units or 48 quarter units as equivalent. For questions pertaining to NCLB, please contact CDE "California Department of Education" by visiting this web page.

• How do I show I am NCLB Compliant?

There are a couple of different ways to demonstrate you are NCLB compliant. 1) A certificate of compliance which is California's way of showing NCLB certification can only be provided by a public school district. For example: You may have a paper from the district you work/have worked in stating that you are NCLB compliant by way of test scores (CSET). In California, an NCLB certificate of compliance can only be provided by a public school district. You can obtain this certificate from any school district you have worked for. For Example, they can give you a document proving you are NCLB certified by way of test scores (CSET). 2) Another way to obtain NCLB compliance is with some of the newer credentials offered. For questions on whether or not your credential meets the requirements, please contact CDE "California Department of Education" by visiting this web page. <http://www.cde.ca.gov/re/di/cd/ap/mainpage.aspx> More information on NCLB can be found at these websites:
